BEST IN CLASS REMANUFACTURING PROCESS

Wear and Tear Parts

- We purchase used alternators and starters from Japan, whereby parts are original and remain in good condition.

Japanese cars typically travel only an average of 40,000 km in 4 years while local cars travel more - up to 100,000 km.

Stringent Inspection

- Our highly experienced and trained technicians dismantle and inspect the purchased parts.
- Parts that are known to have a good life span will be re-used.

Internal electrical and electronic components are also tested.

Remanufacturing

- Our remanufacturing process follows strict guidelines and procedures.
- Parts that has failed or are likely to fail will be replaced.
- The alternators and starters will then be re-installed/restored to factory specifications, i.e. to their original condition and performance.

Parts that are replaced are of either new or near-new high grade quality.

Remanufacturing is NOT repairing. Repairing is merely replacing malfunctioning parts, which serves as a temporary fix and is less reliable than using remanufactured or new parts.
